

2016 Gravel Pit Shiraz

94 points, Campbell Mattinson

This release of Gravel Pit Shiraz is pretty much what a lot of red wine lovers are looking for.

Style, substance, smoothness and length. It tastes good and deep, it feels soft, and it finishes with a satisfying flourish. There's nothing not to like. Blue and black berry flavours; a healthy clip of cedarwood/clove-like oak; tips of mocha and flashes of gum leaf. Spice notes, yes, but not sneezy with them; a lacing of fine-grained tannin but fully integrated with the fruit and oak. Super wine. Ripe and luscious, plus plus.
